Prior to the Local Government Act, 2000, members received allowances on an “attendance basis” which meant that they were paid an allowance based on the number of meetings they attended during a four week period. Those rules were changed by national legislation save that, should a member be absent from meetings of the authority for a period of six months, they could be suspended from the Council and their allowance stopped.

Following the change in entitlement all local authority members are paid an allowance that takes no account of attendance at meetings into consideration. However, members still have a duty to represent their constituents and to attend meetings of Council and other fora.

Analysis has been undertaken of member’s attendance at committees of the council for the whole of the municipal year which runs from May 2007 to May 2008.

Types of meetings and fora

Council meets on an eight week cycle and has three types of meetings; the annual meeting, ordinary meetings and extraordinary meetings which are conducted in accordance with Council Procedure Rules as included within the Constitution.

Scrutiny and Performance Panels, the authority has five such panels which meet on a six weekly cycle; Children’s and Young People, Neighbourhood, Health Social Care and Inclusion, Regeneration and Corporate.

Cabinet (or the “Executive”), meets every four weeks and consists of ten Executive members appointed by Council.

Certain functions, such as planning, licensing, personnel, health and safety and elections are delegated to Committees such as;

- Audit Committee (meeting every six weeks)
- Appointments Board (adhoc)
- Development Control Committee (meeting every three weeks)
- Employment Appeals Committee
- LEA Government Appointment Panel (meeting every six weeks)
- Licensing and Safety Committee (meeting every six weeks)
- Standards Committee (meeting every quarter)

The analysis in Appendix a is split by Committee and provides a brief overview of the Committee including the number of meetings that are held each year followed by the breakdown of member’s current attendance levels.
