

better scrutiny for better government

The Centre for Public Scrutiny promotes the value of scrutiny and accountability in modern and effective government and supports non-executives in their scrutiny role

Evening Seminar on Scrutiny of crime and disorder; making it work– members and officers

20 October 2009

etc venues, Birmingham

£99.00 +VAT per ticket

In April this year, local authorities gained new powers to investigate work being undertaken by the council's crime and disorder reduction partnership. This seminar will look at what these new powers allow, how they should be used as a framework to deliver an improvement relationship between scrutiny and crime and disorder partners, and how local authorities and police authorities could work together to deliver enhanced police accountability
